PRESIDENT THOMPSON,

Of the Ohio River Road, Dies After a Very Brief Illness

OF DREAD TYPHOID-PNEUMONIA

At Washington City—He Passes Away at 6:45 O'clock Last Evening—He Was Suddenly Stricken by the Fatal Disease at the Capital—His Wife and Brother, Col. W. P. Thompson, of New York, Were at His Bedside. A Brilliant Career Closed—Sketch of His Life.

News was received in this city shortly after 8 o'clock last evening of the death of George W. Thompson, of Parkersburg, president of the Ohio River railroad, at Washington City. His death was comparatively sudden, as he had only been sick a few days, and the sad news came as a shock to his friends in this city.

Mr. Thompson left Parkersburg for the east a week ago suffering with a severe cold, which developed into typhoid pneumonia. A dispatch from Parkersburg says that the news of his demise cast a pall over that city, where he was greatly loved by everybody.

His wife and brother, Col. W. P. Thompson, of New York, were at his bedside and did everything in their power to make comfortable his last hours. Mr. Thompson died at 6:45 o'clock p. m. yesterday.

A message was sent to Dr. J. E. Bellville from Col. W. P. Thompson, requesting him to visit the mother of the deceased, who resides two miles east of this city, and prepare her for the intelligence of the death of her son. As Mrs. Thompson is very feeble from the weight of years her friends are very apprehensive of the effect of the news upon her.

George W. Thompson was the son of the late Judge G. W. Thompson. He was born in this city June 23, 1843. Receiving a fair education in excellent schools he afterwards completed his education at Washington-Jefferson college, Washington, Pa. Removing to Parkersburg in 1865 he was employed in a clerical capacity in railroad and mercantile business. He was married in 1869 to Miss Belle, daughter of General John Jay Jackson. In 1885, with his brother-in-law, Henry C. Jackson, he founded the wholesale grocery firm of Thompson & Jackson, which still exists. At the preliminary formation of the Ohio River railroad company he was made vice president. In June, 1884, when the road began operation south as far as the Little Kanawha, he assumed the practical management of the company, of which he was at the time of death and since May, 1885, the president.

Few men of his age have shown such capability in executive management and in so unostentatious way as he. He was exceedingly popular with subordinates over the entire line, and his administration acceptable to the distinguished capitalists who were interested in the road.

As a citizen of Parkersburg he was highly respected for his integrity of character and his modest demeanor, and in this, the city of his birth, his death will be sincerely regretted by a large acquaintance and a wide circle of warm friends.

An Associated Press dispatch gives the following particulars of Mr. Thompson's illness and death:

"The deceased left his home in Parkersburg, W. Va., last Friday. He was taken with a chill on the train and when he reached this city he went at once to Dr. Hammond's sanitarium. Acute pneumonia developed rapidly, and his relatives were telegraphed for. Senator Camden, his brother-in-law, who was in West Virginia, brought back with him the family physician of Mr. Thompson, Dr. Harris. The disease was too far advanced to be overcome and death was expected at any time to-day. The remains will be taken to Parkersburg over the Baltimore & Ohio to-morrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

"The deceased leaves a widow, three daughters and a son."

AN INNOCENT GIRL.

And an Ignorant Father—Possible Sad Consequences Happily Averted.

A German girl, aged sixteen years, rosy cheeked, ignorant of the ways of the world and also of the English language, arrived at the Baltimore & Ohio depot yesterday morning from Baltimore, and but a few days in that city from Germany. Her bewildered air in the depot was noticed by a German citizen who approached her and inquired if he could be of any assistance to her. The girl said that she had expected to meet her father, as he had sent her a ticket to this city, and had also given her his address. The gentleman looked at the address, 1810 Eoff street, which being in a rather unsavory locality, aroused his suspicion, he therefore prevailed on the innocent girl to accompany him to police headquarters until the location could be investigated.

Captain Bennett proceeded to the address given and found the girl's father there, the house being rented by his sister. Although this woman was the only female inmate of the place it was plain to be seen that she was making preparations to receive other boarders of the unfortunate class that infest that neighborhood. The father of the young girl, whose name is Gumpert, was entirely innocent of the character of the locality, but Capt. Bennett did not think it wise to allow the girl to lodge in the house. He found a pleasant home for her, temporarily, at Mrs. Glassner's on Sixteenth street, that lady promising to care for her until she found service with some good family.

We cannot say, and will not say, That Russell is dead; he is just away! With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand, He wandered into an unknown land, And left us dreaming how very fair It needs must be since he lingers there.

And you—Oh, you who the wildest yearn For the old times, stop and the glad return—Think of him as faring on, as dear In the love of there as the love of here, The task of him still as the same, I say: He is not dead—he is just away!
